Have you ever thought about how powerful you can be if you ask the right questions? The person who asks the questions is more in control of the conversation than the one who answers. However once you take control of your questioning, you will also be better able to answer questions effectively and without embarrassment.

Questions are not just about remembering the facts you have been taught. Good questions can be open-ended and guide students and employees into a better understanding and more creativity.

Rhetorical questions are not meant to be answered, and yet they are powerful to engage your listeners during a presentation or talk.

And don't forget the questions that you should be asking yourself. This book includes a list of fifty powerful questions that you can work through asking yourself to improve your thinking and your relationships.
