Alcohol and Hormones (Drug and Alcohol Abuse Reviews) Ronald R. Watson

Alcoholism, the oldest addictive illness, remains a serious problem because of its major modifications of many physiological systems. The genetic and neurological origins and mechanisms are complex and only partly understood. However, it is clear that alcohol use modifies the production of most hormones, directly and indirectly modulating the systems that hormones regulate. Acute and chronic alcohol consumption affects virtually all cellular functions of tissues like brain, liver, immune system, and reproductive and endocrine organs. The latter have major regulatory roles, affecting many functions from development to reproduction. Although stress can further modify alcohol's effects on hormone production, it significantly causes most of alcohol's modifications of the body to occur via changes in hormone production and secretion.
